Inkaterra Reserva Amazonica

Inkaterra is a Peruvian organization that celebrates 37 years of experience in sustainable and luxury tourism initiatives.

For the second time since 2010 by Tourism for Tomorrow, Inkaterra is proud to one of the three finalists in the “Conservation” category. Tourism for Tomorrow Awards is organized by the World Travel & Tourism Council (WTTC).

Inkaterra Reserva Amazonica is located on the Madre de Dios River, in Southern Peruvian Amazon rainforest and a pioneer of conservation and sustainability in Peru. Inkaterra La Casona is an 11-suites boutique hotel in the historic city of Cusco, Peru.

In addition to the Tourism for Tomorrow nomination, Inkaterra recently received the First International Certificate in Sustainable Tourism given by Control Union Green Choice Sustainable Tourism Standard.

Inkaterra prides itself on their luxury accommodations and impeccable service. Condé Nast Johansens, the international luxury travel guide, awarded Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel

“Most Excellent Eco Resort” in the 2012 Awards for Excellence. Inkaterra was the only hotel in Peru to receive an award.

Inkaterra strives for excellence and focuses on preserving and rescuing Peru’s geography, nature, customs and cultures and sharing them with the world.
