

FLIP THROUGH THE PAGES OF

sharp on youtube

sharp on facebook

rss feed

sharp insider

previous issues

media kit

SHARP CARS

Select a Model

SEARCH SHARP

Search

subscribe & save 33%

order now

6 issues for only $20!

sharp

how to be a PERFECT GENTLEMAN

Sharp Travel: Inkaterra Reserva Amazonica Canopy Tree House.

Author: William Stodalka

2009-08-25 06:09:26

SHARE e-mail to a friend

When man first arrived on this Earth, he lived in the treetops, watching as the sun set over the jungle canopy. And maybe he could understand the beauty he was seeing, maybe not. But then he came down. And thousands of years later, a small few of them will return to one of those canopies, as a vacation.

Ninety feet above the Amazon Forest Floor,

Inkaterra, an eco-tourism company, has set up the Canopy Tree House. In a humble thatch-roofed hut, you wake up to a 360 panorama of the forest greenery. You can see orchids, toucans, hummingbirds, monkeys – and more, in the tree house's splendid isolation.

This tree house is on the 40 square miles of forest near the Amazon River that Inkaterra owns as a private ecological reserve. While originally put there for scientific purposes, four years ago, the company began offering nights in this upscale aerie to eco-tourists with a yen for the unusual.

Inkaterra has crisscrossed the canopy with a series of elevated pathways more than 11 football fields long, so that visitors can observe the forest up close. In fact, a single suspension bridge connected to these pathways is the only way to access the tree house. For walks closer to the Earth, a trail network on the ground runs through the surrounding jungle.

If you're looking to get back in touch with nature, perhaps even your own nature as a treetop dweller, and have a luxurious vacation at the same time, this is the best tree you could climb.

$400 USD for one person, or $600 for 2, plus 10% service charge. For more information or to reserve the room, go to <http://inkaterra.com/en/reserva-amazonica>.

WIN THE PERFECT STEAK GRILLING PACKAGE

Broil King Great Barbecues Every Time

ENTER CONTEST

Broil King Sovereign XL90 Pro barbecue and The Perfect Steak Lovers Package!

our list of CANADIAN DESIGN ICONS

Sharp Presents

CANADA'S ONLY GUIDE TO FINE TIMEPIECES

MANual to Peak Performance