

At Fodor's, we know that where you stay can make—or break—your vacation. That's why our writers and editors travel the globe each year, scouting new properties and revisiting Fodor's-recommended lodgings to ensure our coverage always hits the mark. Like any world traveler, we can't help but brag about our special finds. Our first-ever global Fodor's 100 Hotel Awards conveys our top resort and hotel picks for 2011, from innovative boutiques in Beijing to luxe wilderness lodges in British Columbia. Presented in eight fantastic hotel categories, from grand dame to design, the year's most remarkable lodgings are sure to inspire your next getaway.

Machu Picchu and the Inca Trail Hotels

Inkaterra Machu Picchu

Aguas Calientes | $$$$ | Fodor's Choice

Fodor's HOTEL
100 AWARDS2011

LUXURIOUS RETREAT | WINNING ATTRIBUTES

At a Glance

+ Pros

- Natural setting
- Many activities

- Cons

- Expensive

Inkaterra Machu Picchu Review

A five-minute walk from the center of town takes you to this stunning ecolodge in its own minitropical cloud forest. The stone bungalows, none with the same design, have a rustic elegance, with exposed beams and cathedral ceilings. Activities include a one-day Inca Trail trek, bird-watching excursions, and orchid tours, as well as a twilight nature walk. The restaurant overlooking the surrounding hills is first-rate—try the delicious crema de choclo (corn chowder). The place was renamed in 2007, but everyone still refers to it as the Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel.

2011 Fodor's 100 Hotel Award Winner

Sky-High Andean Retreat

One normally doesn't think of sustainability and luxury as going hand-in-hand, but Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo has successfully united the two, creating a world-class recipe for optimum relaxation. Set in a cloud forest, among an orchid and hummingbird sanctuary, this eco-resort is the perfect backdrop for tranquility. With just the right mix of elegance, modern amenities, and traditional Andean décor, the rustic styled rooms (made of stone, adobe, and eucalyptus wood) radiate comfort. The attentive personal service keeps all worries at bay and there's plenty of pampering, be it sleeping on soft alpaca bedding, sipping Peruvian Pisco by the fireplace, drinking tea from the hotel's own tea plantation, soaking in one of the private outdoor hot tubs, indulging in the locally harvested gourmet fare, or visiting the resort's eco-friendly UNU spa—where even the botanical products are derived from flora grown on site. There will be little choice but to unwind here—and without in

Contact Information	Hotel Amenities
Address: Av. Imperio de los Incas s/n, Aguas Calientes Map It	83 rooms, 2 suites.
Phone: 084/211--032; 01/610--0404 in Lima; 800/442--5042 in North America	Restaurants, bar, pool, spa, business center.
Website: www.inkaterra.com	Rooms have: no TV.
Location: Aguas Calientes	Rate includes some meals.
	Credit cards accepted.

 Like  Tweet  0  +1  0  Share

Link to article: <http://www.fodors.com/world/hotel-awards/2011/>

LUXURIOUS RETREAT

INKATERRA MACHU PICCHU PUEBLO
AGUAS CALIENTES, PERU

A SKY-HIGH ANDEAN RETREAT

One normally doesn't think of sustainability and luxury as going hand-in-hand, but Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo has successfully united the two, creating a world-class recipe for optimum relaxation. Set in a cloud forest, among an orchid and hummingbird sanctuary, this eco-resort is the perfect backdrop for tranquility. With just the right mix of elegance, modern amenities, and traditional Andean décor, the rustic styled rooms (made of stone, adobe, and eucalyptus wood) radiate comfort. The attentive personal service keeps all worries at bay and there's plenty of pampering, sipping Peruvian pisco by the fireplace, soaking in one of the private outdoor hot tubs, or visiting the resort's eco-friendly UNU spa—where even the botanical products are derived from flora grown on site. There will be little choice but to unwind here—and without increasing your carbon footprint. From $548; www.inkaterra.com