

Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba

New York: April 8, 2015 - Inkaterra, Peru's leader in luxury sustainable tourism, is delighted to announce the opening of its sixth property, Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba, located in the Sacred Valley of the Incas, in-between Cusco and Machu Picchu.

Immersed in the countryside in a gorgeous area of the Sacred Valley of the Incas, Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba opens with 12 rooms set in the Casa Hacienda, including a three-room "Owners Suite;" and spans approximately 100 acres.

The contemporary hacienda-style hotel – with architecture and interiors inspired on the area's cultural history – was designed by Denise Guislain-Koechlin with the support of her husband, Inkaterra's founder and CEO Jose Koechlin. She was in charge of the hotel's layout; surrounding gardens; and all interior décor, which includes custom-made furniture and the use of rare Pre-Columbian textiles that adorn the property's high walls.

Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba offers such a vast view of the Sacred Valley, with all rooms featuring views of the valley and surrounding mountains, immersing guests in open space, serenity and relaxing solitude. At approximately 9,515 ft. (2,900 m.) in altitude, guests will also experience one of the best climates in the Cusco region.

The property features a 10-acre organic plantation where guests are welcome to pick their own produce. Crops include red, black and brown quinoa, artichokes, the Urubamba giant corn, purple corn, colored potatoes, ma beans, onions, beans and broccoli.

Traditional medicinal herbs are also farmed and include lemon balm, rosemary, sage, green grass, mint, chamomile, cilantro and anise, among others. All crops are completely "carbon-free," farmed with traditional hand tools and oxen as was done centuries ago.

Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba offers a variety of in-house activities and excursions, such as bird watching (over 30 bird species at the hotel grounds), star gazing, horseback riding, and the rare chance to ride a llama cart, among others.

In summer 2015, other 24 stand-alone luxury casitas will follow, which are laid out amongst native pepper trees, high grass, cactus and wild flowers.
