

Inkaterra's 'Inka-redible' 2015

We had an incredible 2015 here at Inkaterra, and as the festive celebrations draw to a close, we'd love to share the highlights of Inkaterra's 'Inka-redible' 2015 with you. From new orchid species to Spectacled Bear sightings, travel awards to reader's choice awards, we can't wait to see what 2016 has in store for Inkaterra.

2015 was an outstanding year for Inkaterra found and CEO, José Koechlin, who scooped up the PURE Award 2015 for his 'Contribution to Experiential Travel'. Celebrating his commitment to ecotourism and sustainability, the accolade recognises José's development efforts over the past forty years.

This year, José will be the first ever to pick up the inaugural Lifetime Achievement Award at the upcoming Hotel Opportunities Latin America (HOLA) conference, in Miami, Florida – congratulations, José!

The celebrations continued throughout 2015, as Inkaterra was acknowledged as the best Peruvian hotel by the Condé Nast Traveler Readers' Choice Awards. The hotel ranked 3rd in the Top 25 Hotels in South America, praised for its intimacy, cuisine and colonial charm.

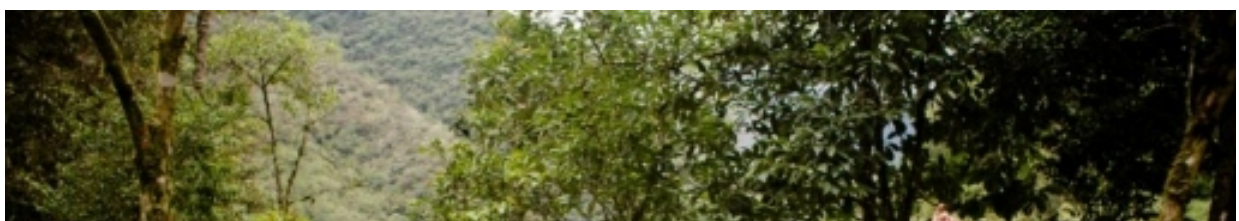

National Geographic also made our 2015 special with their inclusion of Inkaterra in Unique Lodges of the World, as the only brand to offer four destinations within the luxury travel foray.

The year ended with a sighting of our furry friend, the Andean Spectacled Bear. Alongside sightings of the Orange-cheeked parrots in the Madre de Dios River, the Spectacled Bear gave explorers a fascinating encounter with Peruvian nature.

A very happy New Year to all of our Inkaterra explorers, and we look forward to sharing an 'Inka-redible' 2016 with you.
