Where are Peru's 'secret waterfalls'?

January 27, 2017

Bloomberg Pursuits, a luxury and lifestyle hub, chose 8 international locations with secluded falls. Where is Peru hiding these gems?

Do you know where Peru's secret waterfalls are hidden?

Well, if you did, than they wouldn't be secret.

Bloomberg's told us once before: there's more to Peru than Machu Picchu. Now the site's luxury and lifestyle magazine, Bloomberg Pursuits, may be retracting their older sibling's statement.

The magazine recently published an article divulging the top 8 international destinations for secret waterfalls that are so mesmerizing that "they'll make your next vacation magic." According to the article, there are two "little-known" waterfalls in the vicinity of Machu Picchu.

The first is unnamed, but perhaps you'll recognize it from these clues: it's located in Aguas Calientes, and lies at the end of a trail where Inkaterra guides lead guests, pointing out pre-Inca petroglyphs along the way.

The second Machu Picchu fall are a bit easier to find, if only because they have a name. The Mandor falls are located between the Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel (in Aguas Calientes) and the famed Incan citadel
