Few eco-lodges can claim quite so colorful a backstory as Inkaterra Reserva Amazonica. Founder José Koechlin von Stein produced Werner Herzog's Peruvian films, including Fitzcarraldo (in which Klaus Kinski hauls a steam ship over a mountain), and since establishing the Amazonica lodge, has sponsored a fair bit of scientific research regarding the site and its ecology. Point being, plenty of lodges talk a good game about science and adventure, but this one is the real deal.

NEED TO KNOW

In order to guarantee the booking, full payment via credit card is required 30 days before arrival. Kindly make sure that any changes or revisions to the booking are done before this period. Any cancelation made within 30 days of arrival is subject to 100% penalty fee. Children under 12 years old pay 50% rate according to the program and selected category accompanied by one or two adults in the same cabana using existing bedding . We do not recommend the property for children under 5 years old. Based on local tax laws, Peruvian citizens (and foreigners staying more than 59 days in Peru) must pay an additional fee of 18%. To be exempt from this 18% additional fee (IVA), a copy of the immigration card and passport must be presented. Please note both documents are required for fee exemption. Guests who are not able to present both documents will be required to pay the fee at the hotel. Foreign business travelers who require a printed invoice, will also be charged the additional 18% regardless of the length of their stay in Peru. This fee is not automatically calculated in the total costs for the reservation. Pets are not allowed. Check-in: 1pm / Check-out: 11am
