

3 ways to find the real Paddington Bear in Peru

7th Nov 17 | Lifestyle

Ahead of the cinema release of Paddington 2 on November 10, Sarah Marshall recommends the best places to see the spectacled bears that inspired Michael Bond's classic character.

Carrying a suitcase stuffed with marmalade sandwiches, Paddington Bear is one of the Britain's most endearing children's storybook characters.

But Michael Bond's duffel-coated creature – who celebrates his 60th anniversary in 2018 – actually originated in deepest, darkest Peru.

MORE FROM XPOSÉ

hector_repetto1190
Buenos Aires Province

Follow

6 likes 1 comment

Nuevos posters de #Paddington2. #EICLUBE

NOVEMBER 7

Seeking an interesting homeland for his lost protagonist, Bond settled on the South American destination as it sounded exotic.

But Peru does in fact have its own collection of charming bears, and a new limited edition one-sol coin has even been engraved with an image of the spectacled Andean species.

If you want to see one in the flesh, try these 3 options...

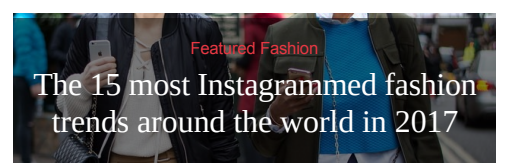

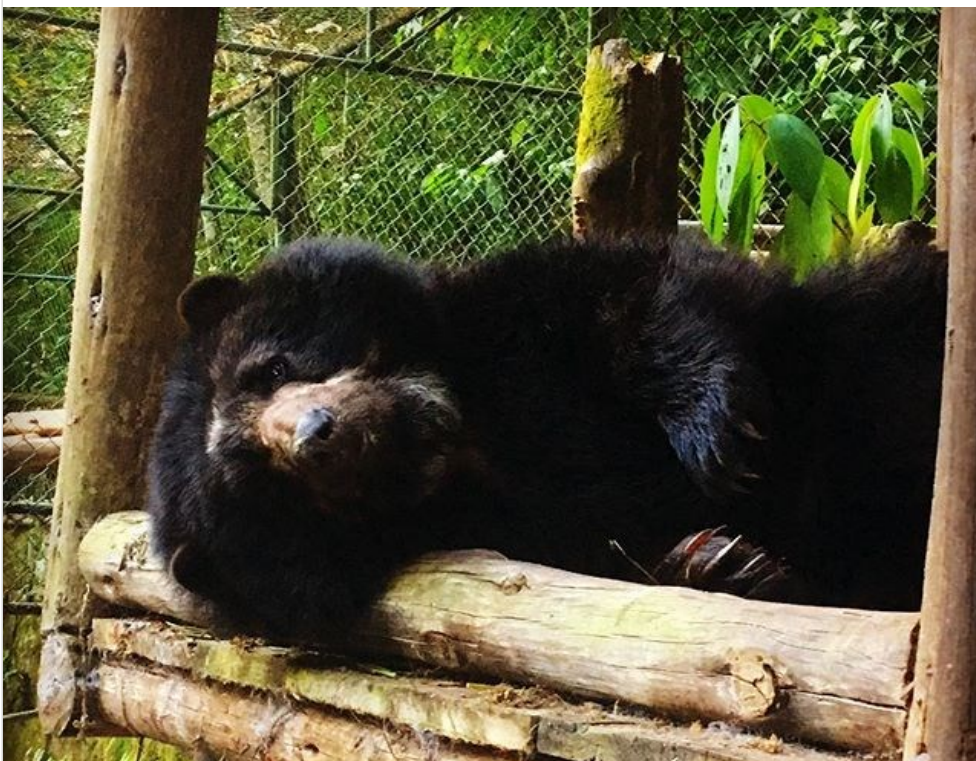

1. Learn the bear necessities with Inkaterra

tonygoldwyn

Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel

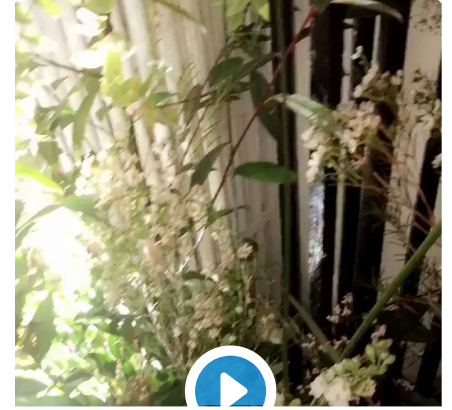

Follow

Xposé @TV3Xpose

Beautiful setting for today's press show

#ss18mands @OneMarylebone @mandsireland

Get Connected

♥ 5,279 likes 💬 42 comments

Meet Kino. An Andean spectacled bear. How many hotels have their own bear rescue program? @inkaterrahotels #MachuPicchu #Peru @howelltalentrelations

JUNE 30

Conservation-minded hotel group Inkaterra has a sanctuary on site at their Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel. A new three-night package allows guests to shadow an Inkaterra Explorer Guide and Bear Keeper as they take care of the animals. From £1,020, all meals included, along with a tour of the famous citadel. Flights extra. Visit inkaterra.com

2. Help them seek sanctuary in Chiclayo

Machu Picchu (Thinkstock/PA)

There's a second rehabilitation centre in Chiclayo on the northern coast of Peru, which is incorporated as part of a trip with Rainbow Tours. Along with a stay at Chaparri Lodge, guests can visit the Sacred Valley, Cusco and Machu Picchu, where they'll also stop by at Inkaterra's rescue centre. The 12-night Darkest Peru: In Search of Paddington itinerary starts from £3,399 per person, including flights. Visit rainbowtours.co.uk

3. Go wild with bears and birds via the Colca Canyon

(Thinkstock/PA)

Seeing spectacled bears in the wild is tough, but Naturetrek give it a go on their 13-day Spectacled Bears & Andean Condors tour. Starting in the tropical dry forests of the north-west looking for Paddington's cousins, the trip continues south to the Colca Canyon and Islas Palomino, where birds are abundant. From £3,995 per person, including all meals and flights from London. Visit naturetrek.co.uk

For more information, visit peru.travel

© Press Association 2017

Previous:
Paris has just launched its first ever naturist restaurant - where diners eat meals in the nude

Next:
Glitter cappuccino is the sparkly coffee trend you need this party season

YOU MAY LIKE

Sponsored Links by Taboola

Why Did No One Tell Us About This New Life Insurance Rule?

Your Life Covered

Last Minute Breaks | 1000'S Of Offers Online! Book Your Holiday In Th...

Findarticles.com

This game will keep you up all night! Register for free!

Forge Of Empires - Free Online Game

Put A Stop To Plastics Pollution. Sign The Petition Now!

Greenpeace

Book Airport Parking Online

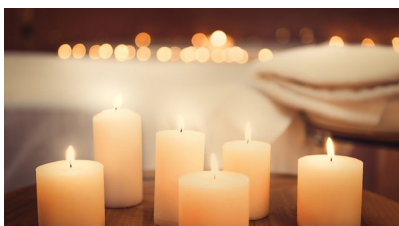

Saving Insight

When A Guy Rescued This Old Trunk From A Dumpster, What He Fou...

GolfersToday.com

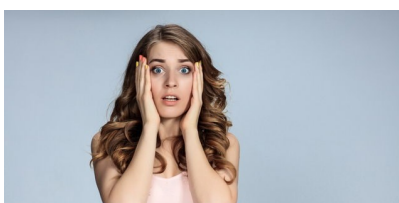

MORE FROM LIFESTYLE

10 little luxuries you could give up instead of 'coffees and takeaways' to afford a house

15th Nov 17 | Lifestyle

Not so long ago, Millennials were told to stop buying avocado on toast in order to afford a house. Now read more

You're most likely to have a quarter-life crisis at 26: Here are 7 signs it might be happening to you

15th Nov 17 | Lifestyle

We all know the stereotypically telltale signs of a mid-life