

Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel

WEDNESDAY 13 JUNE 2018

We love a trailblazer, and Inkaterra have been at it for 40 years. They do authentic, luxed-up eco like few others, and the lodge we love the most is this sprawling cloud-forest sanctuary, smack bang under Machu Picchu. Handy. Rustic-chic casitas – terracotta tiles, beamed ceilings, log fires and snuggly alpaca blankets – sit in kaleidoscopic foliage, where jewel-coloured hummingbirds flutter amidst exquisite orchids that are no bigger than your thumbnail. Spend the morning scrambling up and down Inca stone steps with a top-of-their-game guide, then mooch over to the Andean sauna – a candlelit hut lined with fragrant eucalyptus. Next it’s supper in the glass-walled restaurant, for trout ceviche or alpaca steak. Finish the day with the ultimate nightcap: stargazing with a pisco sour from your hot tub.
