Inkaterra has opened Inkaterra Cabo Blanco, a luxury retreat with 13 ocean-view suites on Peru's northern Pacific coast, introducing a new ecotourism destination rooted in conservation and cultural heritage.

NEW YORK – Inkaterra has opened Inkaterra Cabo Blanco, a luxury retreat located on the northern Pacific coast of Peru, introducing a new destination focused on ecological tourism and cultural heritage.

The property features 13 ocean-view suites, each opening onto private terraces with plunge pools. The opening represents the latest development in Inkaterra's long-standing commitment to showcasing Peru's natural and cultural richness, a vision developed by José Koechlin and the late Denise Koechlin.

opening period, during which guests will be able to experience the property at reduced rates.

Located on Peru's northern coast, Cabo Blanco lies approximately a 95-minute flight from Lima, where desert landscapes meet the Pacific Ocean. The surrounding waters are recognised as one of the country's most diverse marine ecosystems.

Cabo Blanco gained international recognition during the 1950s when Ernest Hemingway visited the area during the filming of The Old Man and the Sea, linking the village to a period associated with literature, cinema and sportfishing.

The location also became known in fishing history when Alfred C. Glassell Jr. caught a 1,560-pound black marlin from the vessel Miss Texas, a world record that remains unbroken. Inkaterra Cabo Blanco now owns the Miss Texas and is refurbishing the vessel for exclusive guest experiences.

The design of Inkaterra Cabo Blanco reflects the coastal character of northern Peru, incorporating woven materials, shaded terraces and open views of the Pacific Ocean.

Each suite spans approximately 1,000 square feet and includes a spacious bathroom, a king-sized bed, lounge seating, and a private terrace with plunge pool overlooking the coastline.

The resort also features a curved main pool with private shaded areas. Dining is provided at the oceanfront Cabo Blanquillo restaurant and lounge, while the beachfront Bar Analua serves beverages including Pisco Sours and cocktails throughout the day.

For more than fifty years, Inkaterra has focused on conservation-led tourism in Peru, with properties located in destinations including Machu Picchu, the Sacred Valley, Cuzco and the Amazon.

The company has been recognised by Green Initiative as the world's first climate-positive hotel brand. In addition, three Inkaterra properties – Inkaterra Machu Picchu Pueblo Hotel, Inkaterra La Casona and Inkaterra Hacienda Urubamba — are featured in the inaugural MICHELIN Guide Peru 2025.
